The first, attached to the image itself, derives from the character portrayed as a center of secondary identifications, carrying an identity which constantly must be seized and reestablished. So I said, 'Let's do it in the desert, it'll be warm,' and it would be sort of the opposite, because even though you think of deserts as being hot, they're still sort of frozen in terms of there's no vegetation and they're very desolate. I thought that that would still work as a visual, but then we got there and it was like 20 degrees below zero, it was bitterly cold, and I was barefoot.

Yet, I think we won't immediately take steps. The Imaginary and the Symbolic are, according to Lacan, inextricably intertwined and work in tension with the Real. Music Week. RecordsPvt.Web, Tablet, Phone, eReader. I'm certainly not going to the concert.
