The Mahdi Army occasionally shelled the Green Zone the central seat of Coalition power in Iraq, with mortars and rockets from the district. This will match the billion already funded by the new Iraqi government. They clean the streets, protect our schools and distribute fuel and gas. Back to top. Heavy street battles, block by block, neighborhood by neighborhood, ensued for the next six months. The US Army did not set up a blockade around Sadr City and did not have military checkpoints around the slum.

Johnson, David E. Shiite civilians would have been caught in the cross-fire and in the end they were able to execute a plan that was very much their. Since then, sporadic clashes have continued in Iraq, between fighters loyal to al-Sadr and US and Iraqi forces.
